SCHOLARSHIP

CURRENT PUBLICATIONS

Robinson, S. (2022). Reconciliation. International Journal of Education Through Art, 18(1), 283-288.

Robinson, S. (2021). A theological reflection on identity and the visual arts (Colossians 1:13-14), WaterPaths, published Feb. 14, 2021.

Robinson, S. (2016). Community: Living in relationship. Resonance Journal, 2(2), 11-18.

CURRENT SCHOLARSHIP IN-PROGRESS

I am currently in-progress with the following three projects and each of them has been submitted as a conference presentation as well. Though they are all at different stages, their relevant descriptions are included in my statement of research.

Transformation as a Result of Aesthetic Perception: A Phenomenological Exploration. Drawing from data in the fourth and fifth chapters in my forthcoming dissertation, this study focuses on participants' narrational accounts of their personal transformations from viewing and interacting with an art object. This paper is in its final revisions and will be submitted for consideration for publication to Art and Aesthetic Perception by Thanksgiving 2023.

World-Building as a Guide for Curriculum Development. Inspired by one of the most important classes I took in graduate school, "Narrative and Video Game Design", this paper will present a new way to envision curriculum development, arguing that we can use the tool of world-building to reimagine this process. I am currently in process of submitting a paper, by December 2023, to Studies in Art Education.

The Historical Development of Landscape Paintings: Decorations or Cultural Agents?. I am currently completing a historical research paper which will present the development of landscape painting from a new perspective, examining the influence of landscape paintings on important, cultural norms and values. This paper will be submitted the Art Education Journal by January 2024.

ADDITIONAL AREAS OF RESEARCH INTEREST

- The role of personal transformation in aesthetic perception
- The gamification of curriculum and pedagogy
- Pedagogical practices within art education
- The emotional, psychological, and interactional effects of aesthetic perception
- The intersection(s) between spirituality, religion, faith, and visual art

PRIMARY RESEARCH METHODOLOGIES USED

- Qualitative Methodologies: Phenomenology, case study, narrative research methodologies, autoethnography, and mixed methods analysis.
- Arts-Based Research (ABR) and Arts-Based Inquiry (ABI) Practices: Active art-making practices, visual thinking and analysis strategies, and design-thinking.

- Pedagogical Methods of Interest: Transformational Learning Theory (TLT), Teaching for Artistic Behavior (TAB), Discipline-Based Arts Education (DBAE), Arts-Based Educational Research (ABER), and Motivational Arts-Based Pedagogy (MABP).
